

Becoming a tutor for the Restraint Reduction Network (RRN)

Introducing you to the role

As a tutor for the RRN you would be supporting learners with a range of different roles. This includes support staff, service managers, or people with professional qualifications, such as nurses, psychologists, or other healthcare professionals through their journey to complete the Reducing Restrictive Practices Certificate or Diploma.

We want to make this journey as rewarding as possible for learners and for our tutors and will support you throughout your role with us.

Your tutor responsibilities

In your role you will be responsible for organising tutorials and providing a limited amount of 1:1 support to learners, helping learners understand course concepts to achieve the learning outcomes. Tutorial guidance and notes are provided.

You will need to become familiar with the course content, which is available on our learning management system. You will also be responsible for marking and assessing the learners' work and providing feedback in a timely manner; there are tutor-marked assignments at both Certificate and Diploma level.

You will need to assess any resubmitted work you refer that does not meet the standard and help the learner understand areas where they may need to do additional work to achieve a pass.

Supporting your learners

Both the Certificate and Diploma are vocational BTEC qualifications delivered within an adult learning context. Most learners are also working, or have other responsibilities, and are undertaking the qualifications on a part-time basis. Many learners may not have studied at this level or in this way before and may need you to help by making reasonable adjustments. You will need to try and understand each learner's situation to support them appropriately.

You will need to attend bi-monthly tutor meetings and will have the support of lead tutors and a buddy group.

Payment

Payment is made per group of learners:

- £1200 per Certificate Group of six learners
- £3000 per Diploma Group of six learners

How to apply

To apply*, please send your CV and a short summary (maximum one side of A4 paper) on why you are suited to the role, what you can offer to the programme, and your interest in our work.

Please send your CV and statement to rrn@bild.org.uk

Closing date is 5pm on Monday 22nd August.

Interviews will be held via Zoom in early September.

*Due to perceived conflicts of interest in the Bild group, RRN Tutors and other RRN Associates cannot also work for Physical Intervention Training Providers.

About the Restraint Reduction Network

The Restraint Reduction Network is a registered charity with an ambitious vision to reduce the over-reliance on restrictive practices in health and social care and education.

We seek to create a culture of respect for human rights across education, health and social care services so that services are safe, dignified and respect people's autonomy and wellbeing, and reduce reliance on restrictive practices.
